What are peptides? Like proteins, peptides are made of chains of amino acids, but peptides are simply shorter. In general, peptides are composed of between two and 50 amino acids, whereas proteins have more than 100 amino acids. Peptides can perform a wide range of very precise cellular functions. The human body naturally produces more than 7,000 known peptides, and there's extensive research underway to identify how these peptides work and how we can utilize them. Peptides are present in every cell of the human body. Your body naturally produces peptides, but as you age, production slows down and levels decline.

What are the benefits of peptides? Peptides flip a switch in your body and increases your own ability to do an action. This initiates a cascade of change to move things in a better direction. Peptide therapy can be personalized to provide numerous precise health benefits.

Specific benefits include: Weight loss, Increased energy, Improved cognitive function, Musculoskeletal repair, Reduced inflammation, Improved muscle mass, Improved exercise recovery, Improved libido, Better sexual function, Strengthened immune system, Better sleep, Increased testosterone levels, Hair growth, Better skin quality, Improved digestive function, Increased Telomere Length, UV resistance, and Improved brain health.

Peptides sold outside of compounding pharmacies are required to be sold as "Not For Human Consumption and For Research Use Only." However, they are the exact same product as sold in compounding pharmacies, always 3rd party tested for quality, purity, and content. If you would like to see testing results, please ask!
